Four happy years behind us
To look upon and say,
We wish you were before us
And not so far away.

But thanks for all we've gained here,
Our learning's just begun;
Good-bye dear friends and Ellsworth
We'll make you proud, each one.

We're leaving you, dear Ellsworth,
And this is our good-bye;

We can't forget that we
Have been with you, have learned from you,
Have shared your company.

We'll carry forth your spirit;
We'll praise your faculty;
We'll work and laugh and love and play
According to your plea.

And as we bow to pray each night
We'll say this prayer for you:
“Dear Lord, keep Ellsworth High a school
That's strong, that's clean, that's true.”

Make every person enter it
With a willing heart and hand,
That we as seniors will be glad
To leave them in command.”

And so we leave this mighty school
And sadly say good-bye;
Dear Ellsworth, we salute you;
We'll remember you till we die.

—HAZEL WHITE.

CLASS HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1943

Bright and early one morning in September of 1939 an intellectual group of young pupils embarked on their respective careers at Ellsworth. After getting lost a few times, we were given an initial party by the Sophomores. Returning the party was a great honor for us as Freshmen, and a number of us participated to make it a success. As is the tradition at Ellsworth High, the election of class officers wasn't held until after Christmas so that we could acquaint ourselves with our classmates. Those chosen to lead us were Charles Weskosky, President; Clinton Whitehouse, Vice-President; Thelma Barry, Secretary; Francis Maizon, Treasurer.

Having elected our class officers, we passed on to another year. This year Clinton Whitehouse was President; Francis Maizon, Vice-President; Gladys Coty, Secretary; Mabel Sargent, Treasurer. We entertained the incoming Freshmen with a Sophomore-Freshman Party, which was gladly returned by the latter. This year several romances budded and we courted in the best way we knew.

Our romantic intellects having progressed somewhat during the summer, most of us looked forward to the Junior Prom. We elected our class officers, did our studies, and participated in the various clubs and sports activities at Ellsworth. Our leaders during this year were Robert Skinner, President; James Callahan, Vice-President; Mabel Sargent, Secretary; Lucy Welles, Treasurer.

Mr. Greer taught Francis Maizon, Raymond Grigley, Edward Wells, Allen Howlett, and Clinton Whitehouse, all from our class, to play basketball; while Mabel Sargent, Elaine Grant, Priscilla Goettler, Bertha Masiunas, Annie Pastula, Phyllis Metcalf, and Shirley Johnson starred in girls' sports. Edward McCann, as well as the boys on the basketball team, starred in both soccer and track.

With the thought of graduation embedded deeply in our minds, we elected our officers for our senior year: Edward Wells, President; Russell Hack, Vice-President; Evelyn Kocarnik, Secretary; George Phillips, Treasurer. Several new courses were introduced and many senior courses were altered. Boys' gym was taken five days a week. As a result, the boys are as husky a group as Ellsworth has ever graduated.

We were busier than ever this year. Almost everyone participated in some activity. Many senior boys participated in Hi-Y activities. Beatrice Sinsigalli and Bertha Masiunas were cheer leaders, as they had been for the two preceding years. Francis Maizon, Raymond Grigley, Edward Wells, Clinton Whitehouse and Allen Howlett again starred in our sports department. Several seniors distinguished themselves as managers of the various sports: Russell Hack in soccer; William Higgins in track, and James Callahan in basketball.

Our Washington trip was cancelled because of transportation difficulties. Despite these handicaps, we worked hard to make a success of the S. C. H. E. Sports Dance and the Senior Get-together. These events, headed by members of our class, were enjoyed by many.

Joseph Terazzi, Eugenia Hubbard, Hazel Morse, Hazel White, Priscilla Goettler, as well as the senior members of the Glee Club, supplied entertainment for our social events. Through their talents our class became noted for its entertaining ability and good sportsmanship.

This year the "South Winds", under the leadership of editors William Higgins and Willard Steane, achieved the largest circulation in the school's history. Other seniors who contributed to the success of the paper were Hazel White, Irene Poliak, Albert Rose, Hazel Morse, James Callahan, Lucy Welles, Thomas Cadder, Robert Skinner, Mabel Sargent, Francis Rittlinger, Dorothy Simler, Phyllis Bancroft, Patricia Bannock, Grace Patinsky, Madeline Norton, Irene Simienski, Bettye Davis, and Clinton Whitehouse.

The Dramatic Club claimed several members of our class. William Higgins, Clinton Whitehouse, Lucy Welles, Samuel Muir, Bettye Davis, Willard Steane, James Callahan, Hazel White, Chancey Stoughton, Robert Skinner and Albert Rose proved to be talented heroes, heroines, or villains in several of the school plays.

Our class was fortunate in being the first to have members elected to the National Honor Society during the Junior year. Those who have been members for two years are Edward Wells, Madeline Norton, Lucy Welles and William Higgins.

Also, we were the first class to have any of the members inducted into military service. Francis Maizon and Clinton Whitehouse were inducted into the Army and Edward McCann enlisted in the Navy.

From this brief account of our life at Ellsworth, it is impossible to realize fully the merits of the class. Perhaps in later years, in yearbooks, in civilian life, in the service, or in newspapers, will be found further evidences of the accomplishments of the Class of 1943.

SAMUEL MUIR,
Class Historian.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1943

As we, the Class of 1943, depart from Ellsworth Memorial High School, we leave the following testament of our affection for our Alma Mater:

Patricia Bannock surrenders her title of "The Vanilla Maid" to Helen Muska, a probable candidate for behind the ice cream counter.

Eugene Bourke leaves his quiet manner to Charlie Callahan.

Alice York is the proud recipient of Thelma Barry's vivacious personality. Take care, Alice; don't let it get the best of you.

Arthur Brown bequeaths his job in the cafeteria to Romeo Boldway.

Anna Boyle bestows on Ida Smith the honor of becoming leader of the Town Street Gang.

Tom Cadder wills his artistic ability to Vincent Sullivan.

Frances Butenas and Frances Dowd leave their enthusiasm for the terpsichorean art, commonly known as dancing, to Eunice Woolam.

Verbose Jim Callahan leaves his talking ability or title as manager of the basketball team to Donald Woolam. Which will you take, Don?

Margaret Clapp leaves her ability to obtain, use, and dispose of chewing gum, a commodity rarely seen these days, to Betty Kirchhof. Watch your step, Betty; Mr. Stoughton thinks the doors need dusting again!

Harold Dodd and Delton Bragg leave their mechanical ability to Eddie Hack.

Bettye Davis' numerous male admirers are left to next year's most popular deb.

Lawrence Enes wills his good manners and red hair to Luther Kendell.

To Elinor Bastien, Helen Dzen leaves her great efficiency and many skills required in the business profession. On second thought, Helen, you may be needing them soon.

Trapper Grigley lends his long powerful arms to Ernie Sunega. They ought to be good for hugging, Ernie.

Margaret Flaherty leaves her nickname "Shorty" to Elva Johnson. Don't abuse it, Elva.

Russell Hack abandons his study periods in the library to Carol Wadach. A great deal of sport can be talked over there, can't it, Carol?

To Betty Havey, Priscilla Goettler, who plans on specializing in psychology, leaves her great interest in the nursing profession.

William Higgins sadly leaves the beautiful girls on his book covers to Russell Burnham. That's one pleasant way to look at your homework, Russ.

Elaine Grant leaves her witty personality and vast knowledge of cute Little Moron jokes to Betty Barry.

Allen Howlett bequeaths his good looks and personality to Mervin Waldron.

Shirlee Grant, the class chatterbox, leaves this characteristic to Eileen Koetsch. You're risking your life, Eileen.

Richard Johnson abandons his corny jokes in English class to Joey Grigley.

Eugenia Hubbard bequeaths to Shirley Maher the outstanding skill which she possesses as a professional acrobatic entertainer.

Francis Maizon relinquishes his athletic ability to Billy Muska. Keep up the good work, Bill.

Shirley Johnson leaves her position as forward on the Girls' Basketball Team to Margaret La Breche, a newcomer in the field of sports.

Sherwood McCorriston leaves his ability to drive a tractor and do farm work to Joseph Kizis.

Gunilla Kehoe wills to Evelyn Whitehouse her constant giggles and silliness. Don't take this seriously, girls.

Samuel Muir surrenders his ability to miss the morning bus to Arthur Koehler.

Evelyn Kocarnik reluctantly leaves to her sister Sylvia her popularity and fame as an all-round good sport.

Earl Perry submits his cool manner when in the face of homework to Jake Kennedy.

Antoinette Krivickas, one of our quiet, bashful seniors, leaves her interest in typing and stenography to Frances Metcalf, a promising business student.

George Phillips wills his ability to wear flashy sweaters to Jewell Burnham. You won't be able to wear them in a blackout, Jewell.

Irene La Breche, who plans to become a specialist in infant care, leaves her enthusiasm and interest in this work to Nancy Potwin, a fellow student with similar ideas.

Francis Rittlinger respectfully bequeaths his wavy hair to Bradley Willson. Keep it up, Bradley.

Bertha Masiunas surrenders her job as the candy counter clerk to anyone who might like it. Here's hoping the candy shortage doesn't last too long!

Play writing Al Rose and advertising Ed McCann leave their respective abilities to anyone who can persuade Mr. Stoughton to let him use the loud speaker. We hope ear muffs won't be rationed.

To Lois Miller, a tyro in the field of business, Phyllis Metcalf leaves her accuracy and speed in typing. Be careful, Lois, there are still speed laws in effect.

Sidney Smith, the youngest boy in the class, leaves his easy ways to Stanley Williams.

Margaret Miller, our expert first-aider, leaves to Dottie Davis her interest in this work. Incidentally, she really is good at applying the jaw bandage to Prillie Goettler. I wonder why!

Willard Steane wills a little of his altitude to Herby Duke. Don't grow too fast, Herb.

Madeline Norton surrenders her flaming red tresses and the traditional temper which accompanies them to John Ahern.

Chan Stoughton relinquishes his ability to break dishes, eat bananas, or overcome villains in school plays, to future actors.

Elinor Palozie, who is noted for inventing new hair styles and starting fads, wills this characteristic to Frances McCann. Remember the green nail polish?

Joseph Terazzi contributes his accordion to the line in the cafeteria at noon. It's hard to tell the line and an accordion apart anyway.

Anna Pastula relinquishes her great sense of humor to Marjorie Richardson.

Herb Tschummi, the class jester, willingly hands over his title to Bob Jillson.

Grace Patinsky, the gal with an ever ready smile, leaves this trait to Ann McGrath. Carry on, Ann.

Edward Wells bequeaths his swift cultivator's stride to Tom Dillon. It will get you there, Tom.

Elsie Perkins bestows upon Laurel Parent her many freckles and matching auburn hair. Iodine isn't the cause of them is it, Laurel?

Charles Weskosky leaves his never ending farm logic to Eddie Broughal.

Irene Poliak leaves her love for nice clothes, especially zoot suits, to Carolyn Arnold.

Betty Reed wills to Georgianna Firszt her very quiet but pleasant nature.

Mabel Sargent, winner of this year's DAR award, leaves the many qualities necessary to accomplish this feat to next year's most deserving student.

To Martina Loftus, Irene Simienski leaves her excellence in speed work while at a typewriter.

Dorothy Simler surrenders to Carol Wall her quiet, reserved manner.

Beatrice Sinsigalli, chief of the school's cheering section, leaves her great abilities in this field to Shirley Cooper, one of the eligibles for the honor.

Eleanor Smith surrenders her friendliness toward all to Gloria Bragg. How about that, Smitty?

Gertrude Thomas leaves to Dorothy Howlett her pleasant, amiable disposition.

Jean Wall relinquishes to Ann Duffy her artistic ability, which has aided her greatly in light machine shop work and mechanical drawing.

Lucy Welles leaves her fame as a talented actress to Phyllis MacDougald. Look out, Hollywood; here she comes.

Hazel White leaves to Florence Boroski her job of caring for the teachers' cafeteria orders. It's an easy way to get good marks, Florence.

Edith Wilson bequeaths her quietness to Kenneth Stone. Don't be too hard on yourself, Kenny!

Joan Divenero leaves her dimples to Carolyn Wadsworth.

Robert Skinner, an expert with the Scotch dialect, leaves his acting ability and past experience in this field to William Arnod.

Phyllis Bancroft leaves her efficiency in her school work to Tiger Waikznis.

On this, the fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-three, we, the President, Edward Wells; Vice-President, Russell Hack; Secretary, Evelyn Kocarnik; Treasurer, George Phillips, set our hand and seal to this testimony and last will.

Signed and sealed and declared by the Class of 1943 of Ellsworth Memorial High School for their last will and Testament in the presence of us who at its request have hereunto subscribed ourselves as witnesses this fourth day of June, 1943.

CLASS PROPHECY

Last week I was instructed to interview the mayor of Broad Brook, Connecticut, for the "Big-Little City" column of Life Magazine. Imagine my surprise when I learned his name! Clinton Whitehouse, one of my old Ellsworth classmates! What a coincidence—meeting him as mayor fifteen years after graduation.

He had a lovely secretary. As I waited to be admitted into the inner office, a flash of recognition came over me.

"Pardon me," I said, "but have you always lived around here?"

"Yes," she said. "Why?"

"Did you go to Ellsworth High School?" I asked her.

"Wait a minute—I know you! Aren't you Lucy Welles?"

"That's right, and you're—you're Bertha Masiunas!"

"Of course," she said. "How are you?"

We were interrupted just then by a buzzer, and I was shown into the inner office.

"I'm Lucy Welles, from Life Magazine," I said.

"Oh yes—haven't I heard your name before?"

"I think you have. We went to high school together."

"That's right! Oh, excuse me a minute. Tillie!"

"Yes, sir?"

"Cancel Wednesday's appointment with Senator Callahan, please."

"Callahan! Wasn't there a Callahan in our class?"

"Yes—James Daniel Callahan. He's our state senator now, you know."

"Wasn't he manager of the basketball team at one time?"

"He certainly was. In fact, the basketball in that trophy case over there still shines from the last time he polished it!"

"What a lovely case!"

"Would you like to look it over?"

"Very much!"

We walked over to the case. He took out the basketball and set it on the table. As we talked, we seemed to see the figures of some of our old classmates passing over its shining surface.

There was a beautiful debutante reclining on the lawn of a South Windsor estate. Thelma Barry!

Who was this working with bottles and chemicals in a laboratory? Willard Steane—discoverer of the famous Vitamin Q, which is used by farmer Dodd to produce potatoes as big as watermelons. This wonderful vitamin is contained in an Eastern States fertilizer. Anyone interested in trying it should contact the manager, Chan Stoughton.

Then we saw an artist working at his easel. It was Tom Cadder! His beautiful model turned out to be—Shirley Johnson!

A scene from Earl Perry's Night Club on Broadway slowly took form. Evelyn Kocarnik is hostess there, you know. While we were watching, Bettye Davis, the famous actress, sang. She was evidently stopping there for only one night on her tour of the country. "Little Joe" Terazzi and his orchestra are featured there. He's the one who used to play the accordion, remember? And Francis Rittlingei is their drummer. I hear they're going on a world tour this summer.

We found Babe Maizon coaching basketball at one of the large high schools near the shore. His old cronie, "Trapper" Grigley, runs a barber shop in Broad Brook. A unique feature of this shop is the comedian, Herb Tschummi, who entertains the customers while they wait.

We saw a group of children playing. With them was Edith Wilson, head of that big children's home in Wapping. In the distance we could see the burlap bag factory. Sam Muir has just been made superintendent.

We recognized the woman in the white uniform as Helen Dzen, head of the South Windsor Red Cross Chapter.

Someone was coming out of a pretty little white house. It was Gunilla. She married a major after the war, you remember.

When television broadcasting station CORN was pictured to us, we saw a great many of our classmates. Sidney Smith is an announcer. The Fanny Fletcher program was on the air, and you know that Fanny Fletcher is really Elaine Grant. I think that program is a lot like the Gracie Allen broadcast used to be, don't you? Priscilla Goettler broadcasts "Fun and Laughter for Everyone" every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Hazel Morse is the soloist. Frances Dworak sings every Friday night on "Music of America", and on Saturday mornings at nine o'clock Margaret Flaherty runs a radio cooking school.

Next week there is to be a big broadcast from the University of Connecticut, I hear. All the leading farmers of the state are going to speak. Ed Wells, owner of Connecticut's largest tobacco plantation, will talk on "The Systematic Management of a Tobacco Plantation." His business manager, Eugene Bourke, and head foreman, Arthur Brown, will be there too. Charles Weskosky will give a lecture on the advantages of milking by hand. There are a thousand cows on his dairy farm, and they are all milked by hand. He hires twenty-five farm hands, besides his assistant, Delton Bragg. Sherwood McCorriston, the big dairyman from Wapping, will talk on the advantages of machine milking. Following these speeches, there will be open discussion among the dairymen present.

The next thing we saw was a marriage clinic, and who do you suppose was working there? Pat Bannock! A love-lorn wife was crying her heart out on Pat's shoulder. She should read Margaret Clapp's column in the Times, "How to Get and Hold Your Man."

Irene LaBreche is doing social service work. We saw her coming out of an apartment in Hartford's slum section.

Several of our classmates have been in the service ever since the war. A parade marched by on the surface of the ball, and we saw Lieutenant Commander Howlett and his chief machinist mate, Russell Hack. Eddie McCann is still in Panama, I hear. He's a captain, now. There was a company of WAACS in the parade, too, but the only ones we recognized were Lieutenant Bancroft and Sergeant Palozie.

At last we were shown some scenes direct from Hollywood. We saw Eugenia Hubbard practicing her dance routine for her next picture. Gertrude Thomas, that famous dress designer, is planning the costumes for it. They're trying to get that lady architect, Jean Wall, to design some of the sets. She's the one who designed the model house for the Hartford World's Fair. Hazel White, the radio star, was in Hollywood, too. We saw the building where Albert Rose works as successor to Walt Disney.

The next scene was the Hartford Hospital. Irene Poliak was working at the main desk. Farther in, we saw Margaret Miller attending an operation. In a private room Irene Simienski was caring for Madeline Norton, buyer for Fox's Department Store. Miss Norton was hurt last week when the taxi in which she was riding hit another car. Antoinette Krivickas is Superintendent of Nurses, and Eleanor Smith is dietitian. By the way, did you know that Betty Reed has started an experimental kitchen? She's working on nutritional values of dehydrated foods.

We saw the White House next, and who do you think is the President's private secretary? Grace Patinsky! Frances Dowd works for the Secretary of State. We saw Shirlee Grant, too. She writes "The Personal Side of Washington" for the New York Times. There was a newspaper on one of the desks, and we learned from one of the headlines that Mabel Sargent has just won the national tennis championship.

Then a classroom appeared. The Mayor thought it might be Professor Skinner's history class at Harvard, but what an error! As we saw it more clearly, we recognized Phyllis Metcalf with one of her hairdressing classes. They were watching a demonstration by Annie Pastula, famous beauty culturist.

We saw Larry Enes sitting behind a big desk, giving his secretary, Elsie Perkins, a letter. We didn't know what kind of office it was until a man in uniform came in. On his hat we saw "SWFD" (South Windsor Fire Department).

When the ball showed us a large business college in Hartford, we saw Frances Butenas teaching a typing class. They were expecting a visit from Dorothy Simler, the world champion typist.

We saw a large dancing class, and who should be teaching it but Bill Higgins and his pretty assistant, Bea Sinsigalli!

The big airplane manufacturing center in Warehouse Point was pictured, and there was Richard Johnson, President, conferring with his secretary, Anna Boyle. Joan Divenero has charge of the typing department there, and George Phillips does the designing of new models.

As the last scene faded, we turned away from the magic ball.

"Well!" the Mayor said, "was I seeing things, or did you see it, too?"

"I saw it all right! What a write-up this will make! They'll never believe it's true. I'll have the photographer come over this afternoon to take some pictures."

"O. K. But you'll need more proof than that to make the public believe it. I'm still not sure we weren't dreaming!"

CLINTON WHITEHOUSE.

In this year of changing conditions, the Student Council, which consists of the Senior class officers, the presidents of the other classes, the leaders of all organizations and a representative from each home room, has taken the initiative in co-operating with Mr. Stoughton in solving the problems brought about by the war.

The Student Council has sponsored the sale of Christmas cards, the returns of which will be used to pay for assembly programs. Among other achievements of this group are the formation of dancing rules and the continuance of the National Honor Society and of the Honor Privilege System.

S. C. H. E. CLUB

The Social Crafts Home Economics Club is one of the largest clubs in the school. Because of the transportation problem, the girls did not have so many kinds of pleasure as they have had in the past. Under the supervision of Mrs. Tapley, however, they were able to have many enjoyable get-togethers.

The Sports Dance, planned and sponsored by the club, proved to be one of the most successful events of the year.

The club was assisted by Miss Salipante, Miss Schubert and Mr. Reardon as heads of the property, costume and ticket committees respectively. Mr. Bennett supervised the building of the staging and Mr. Casinghino prompted the annual play.

In previous years the Senior Class received half the proceeds. Since the war made it impossible for the class to make the annual Washington trip, the money was turned over to the Athletic Association, who sponsored the sale of tickets.

SOCER SQUAD

Under the direction of Mr. Greer and Mr. Loeffler, the Soccer Squad experienced an extremely successful season. The team won eleven games, losing one to Glastonbury.

Making the best of the transportation situation, the team used public buses in traveling to neighboring localities to complete their "away" game schedule. Congratulations to the Soccer Squad for completing a very successful season and for being the first of our athletic squads to solve the transportation problem.

BOYS' BASKETBALL SQUAD

Under the direction of Mr. Greer and Mr. Loeffler, the team went through an undefeated season, winning twenty-six consecutive games. The season was climaxed by the winning of the Class C-D Championship for the fourth time in five years.

This year Ellsworth also defeated two Class B schools, East Hartford and Windsor. The team also defeated Old Saybrook in a "Mile of Dimes" benefit double-header in Hartford. The transportation problem was coped with by using public buses.

In the columns of surrounding newspapers, all five of the first team were cited on the Class C-D All Star Team. At the close of the season Captain Clinton Whitehouse and Francis Maizon were inducted into the United States Army. The other Senior boys and William Muska were rewarded by a trip to New York City to witness the College Basketball Tournaments in Madison Square Garden.

TRACK SQUAD

Although many schools have abandoned track, the Track Squad is exemplifying the school's policy of carrying on with athletics this year.
